

Attention Of Civilized World Is Centered On The Senate As Ratification Of 4-Power Treaty Begun

"GREATER AUBURN" CAMPAIGN STARTS IN MORGAN COUNTY APRIL 3, NEW PLAN

Meeting of District Committee-men Held Thursday Afternoon At the Lyons

DR. SPIGHT DOWELL OUTLINES THE NEEDS Absolutely Necessary That School Have More Equipment, President Says

The Greater Auburn campaign will be launched in Albany, Decatur and Morgan county April 3, according to tentative plans outlined at a meeting Thursday afternoon at the Lyons hotel which was attended by Dr. Spight Dowell, president of Auburn and members of the campaign committees of Morgan and several adjoining counties.

Members of the committees pledged their support and co-operation in the movement designed to raise $1,000,000 to provide necessary buildings and equipment at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and it was declared that despite unfavorable economic conditions in many sections no effort would be spared to make a success of the endeavor and to secure the quotas allotted to Morgan and the other counties in this district.

Dr. Dowell, in a brief presentation of the situation at Auburn which made the present campaign a necessity, called attention to the fact that Auburn had never received support in the past commensurate with the number of students attending the institution and that a critical period in the history of the school was now at hand. Without additional support at once, hundreds of Alabama boys and girls clamoring for the agricultural and industrial training which Auburn alone gives in Alabama would be denied that right without facilities were provided without delay.

"The only dormitory for boys at Auburn is an old frame structure abandoned by the government after the war in which 180 students live and 300 get their meals," said Dr. Dowell. "The only dormitory for girls will accommodate only 100 and therefore only that number of girls can attend Auburn. Auburn is a town of only 250 houses, yet the local people house 1,000, or an average of four students in every home in the town. Their homes are so crowded that no more can be taken in."

"Class rooms are used every hour in the day, six days each week and many classes have to be held before breakfast and at night in order to have a place to meet. The only auditorium at the college will accommodate only half the students, so there is no place in Auburn where they can be assembled. The library is only one fourth large enough. Students in engineering are working with equipment provided 30 years ago when there were less than one-fourth the present number of students. There are only eight transits and 10 levels, all old and worn, provided for 150 students in civil engineering, thus greatly hampering the work of the students who need practical experience."

"The agricultural and live stock departments of Auburn are especially handicapped. Auburn has not one-fourth enough land to carry on the necessary agricultural experiment work and the barns used for the live stock and other branches of the agricultural department were built 40 years ago and are totally inadequate. I might cite many other needs of the institution but these will be sufficient to show you how the school has been neglected."

"When these facts are known, it will seem all the more remarkable that Auburn has been one of the leading agricultural and mechanical schools of the nation and its graduates have taken the highest rank in agriculture and in industrial affairs. Auburn is the hope of Alabama industry."

CONTRACT LET FOR HIGHWAY

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 24.—Contracts for the construction of a hard surfaced road from Hartselle to Cullman on the Bee Line highway were let by the state highway commission Thursday afternoon to the Texas Roads company, of Dallas, Texas, which was the lowest bidder on the two projects. The road will be of crushed limestone with a surface of bituminous concrete.

These contracts were among six which were let by the highway commission following bids which were opened Tuesday and Wednesday. The Henderson-Smith company, of Montgomery, won the contract for the construction of a hard road leading from Judkins Ferry bridge to Wetumpka, county seat of Elmore county. This will connect the county seats of Montgomery and Elmore counties. The W. T. Taylor Construction company, of Wilsonville, was awarded the contract for the construction of the hard surfaced road in Marshall county. E. P. Toulmin, of Mobile, lowest bidder, was awarded the contract for the road project in Marengo county.

The contracts will provide that work shall be started at once and shall be completed within a reasonable time. Great interest has been manifested in the contracts by contractors and material men and representatives came to Montgomery from North Carolina, Texas and other states.

SUPREME COURT DELAYS HANGING OF NEGRO WOMAN

(International News Service) CENTERVILLE, Ala., March 24.—An eleventh hour decision of the supreme court to grant a new trial saved Nellie Beston, negro woman, from the gallows today. The woman, sentenced to death for the murder of her husband a few days ago, was scheduled to hang this morning and Sheriff R. H. Wood had made all preparations for the execution.

Notice of the decision to give the woman a new hearing was received last night by the sheriff and Frank Head, attorney for the woman. Details of the murder were so harrowing that much attention was attracted to the case.

According to testimony introduced at the trial the woman attacked her husband while he was sitting down, striking him with a heavy instrument and killing him instantly. She then attempted to dispose of the body by concealing it in a stream nearby, according to the evidence presented.

Had the sentence been carried out the woman would have been the first to be hanged in Alabama in half a century.

Service Continues To Draw Crowds

The evangelist now holding a meeting at the Ninth Street Methodist church preached last night from the 16th chapter of Matthew, descriptive of the fall of the rich man into hell, and the salvation in Abraham's bosom of Lazarus, who had lain daily at the feet of Jesus, during his last illness. The answer given the rich man, "There is a great gulf fixed," was the text chosen by the preacher, and the impossibility, outside of spiritual means in this life of eliminating that gulf was dwelt upon.

According to the pastor, Rev. J. W. Curl, the largest attendance yet present at any of the meetings was in attendance last night. A number publicly expressed a desire for a better life. The 10 o'clock service yesterday morning was largely attended.

Tax Values May Come Down Soon

Eugene Bailey, the new tax adjuster for Morgan County, is actively at work investigating the tax assessments of the county and gives it as his opinion there will be a lowering of values. As pointed out by Mr. Bailey, farm values have greatly decreased within the last two years as have the products of the farm, and it is but right that land values assessments should be lowered correspondingly. Mr. Bailey is working hard and painstakingly and is doing his very best to be just to each side he represents in the discharge of the duties of his office.

FOUR PERSONS ARE BELIEVED DEAD IN FLOOD IN KANSAS

(International News Service) BURLINGTON, Kans., March 24.—Four persons are believed to have died in a cloudburst which enveloped this community last night. Damage is said to be in excess of $1,000,000. The main section of the village was inundated by rushing waters from five to 12 feet deep during the crest of the flood.

At an early hour today the body of Miss Oletha Sailling was recovered. The cloudburst struck at 8 o'clock. A short time later Rock creek, which runs through the center of the town, was over its banks with incredible swiftness and a wall of water rushed down the main business thoroughfare and engulfed it.

Houses were lifted from their foundations by the force of the water. Motor cars were swept from the streets and borne along the crest of the flood. Two thousand feet of the track of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad were washed away. Tracks of the Santa Fe railroad also were washed out.

Many thrilling rescues were made during the flood, some persons being taken out of wrecked homes, standing in the flood waters, through holes chopped in the roofs of the houses.

John Patterson For Legislature

In this issue of The Daily John Patterson announces for the legislature, doing so at the urgent insistence of many and at much sacrifice to himself and associates. Mr. Patterson is capable, outspoken and fearless and it is conceded that he will represent his people ably. John Patterson puts his "cards on the table" and the people are not left in doubt as to his position. He was born in Ireland, has resided here 32 years, worked in the Louisville and Nashville shops 23 years, is a successful business man, has served many years as councilman, as president of the council, was mayor 1910-12, and has served in the various public capacities with credit to himself and his constituents. During the world war he served with distinction as a member of the fuel committee.

It is a good omen when men of such high character offer for public place.

BREWTON GETS PLANT MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 24.—(Special)—Brewton will be given a meat packing plant as a result of the incorporation of the Brewton Packing company with an authorized capital of $30,000 and a paid in capital of $15,000, articles for which were filed with the secretary of state today. The company has authority to construct and operate the packing plant and other facilities for the slaughter of cattle. A. B. McPhaul and L. G. Mayo were included in the list of incorporators.

Do You Know

The Albany city hall was erected in the year 1905.

Samuel Blackwell was mayor of the city at that period.

The contract was awarded for its erection at a meeting held March 28, 1905.

Ross and Tuttle were the contractors, beginning work in April, 1905.

Prior to the erection the mayor and board of aldermen met in the Penney building where The Daily now is issued.

Henry Hartung has been city clerk since May, 1909.

TWO ORGANIZATIONS URGING UNDERWOOD TO ACCOMPANY THE SOLONS TO SHOALS

Kiwanis Club and Hartselle Chamber of Commerce Ask Action

TELEGRAMS FORWARDED TO THE CAPITAL TODAY

Muscle Shoals Declared In Wires To Be Of Greatest Importance

Morgan county, through different organizations today made two demands upon Senator Oscar W. Underwood that he drop his tasks in Washington and come to Muscle Shoals with the congressional inspection party.

The Morgan Kiwanis club telegraphed Alabama's senior senator as follows: "Senator O. W. Underwood, Washington, D. C.—We most respectfully urge you to accompany the agricultural and military affairs committees on their inspection trip to Muscle Shoals, irrespective of all things else on earth. In importance this is next to the plan of salvation. Morgan Kiwanis club."

The Hartselle chamber of commerce, recently created civic and commercial organization of that Morgan county city, forwarded the following telegram: "We deem it of more importance, the awarding of Muscle Shoals and you joining committee from Washington on inspection trip, than your reason 'treaties now pending'."

The latter resolution was adopted at a called meeting of the Hartselle commercial chamber, which is composed of many of the most prominent business men of that community.

Blossoms Pretty, But Fruit Lacking On Peculiar Tree

On the lawn at the home of Judge W. T. Lowe there stands a flowering peach tree. The tree bears no fruit but each season the branches are covered with a most beautiful array of variegated blossoms which attract the eye of all who chance to pass that way. It is true the tree bears no fruit but it can be excused from this because of the fact that it makes up in beauty each season that it fails to deliver in fruit.

It is quite a remarkable sight to those who have never seen anything of this kind, and the blossoms are eagerly sought and accepted and carried to many parts of the county.

GOVERNOR LEAVES

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 24.—(Special)—Governor Kilby left his office Thursday afternoon without issuing any order in the case of Nellie Beston, negro woman, and she will be hanged sometime today in the Bibb county jail at Centerville. She was convicted of the murder of her husband after she had admitted the crime and had stated that it was committed after a fuss with her husband.

Real Fight Over Bonus Is Opened In Senate Today

Passage By House But One Phase Of Battle

DELAY SOUGHT

Republican Plans Are To Hold Up Final Vote

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The real fight over the soldier bonus bill began today. Passage of the much maligned bill by the house and its transmission to the senate today is only one phase of the intensive battle which will be fought out between now and next November.

The new fight has for its primary object a long delay that will enable the administration to perfect other arrangements for the payment of the bonus than are contained in the certificate plan brought out by the house ways and means committee.

Republican senatorial leaders have not, by any means, abandoned the project of making the $11,000,000,000 foreign indebtedness of the United States pay the adjusted compensation demanded by world war veterans, either through interest payments or through some scheme of foreign bond issuance.

They believe the nation can discharge its obligation to the former soldiers and at the same time refrain from putting more burden on the already overburdened taxpayer.

President Harding and certain of his advisers who are frankly opposed to the bill as it passed the house are known to look with favor on a bonus bill that could be framed under these conditions.

The official announcement in the house of commons that Great Britain will pay the United States six months interest this fall and thereafter will make interest payments with some regularity has given new hope to administration leaders that ultimately matters can be arranged to let the foreign indebtedness carry the bonus load.

Whether the administration's policy of delaying matters can be successfully put through is problematical, it was admitted today. While it is doubtful that the senate would pass the bonus bill as it stands today, there are, nevertheless, many sincere friends of the bonus bill in the senate and it is predicted that it will be only a matter of days before these begin agitating for senatorial action.

Wave Of Murder Sweeping Ulster

(International News Service) BELFAST, Ireland, March 24.—A red wave of murder, in which eight were killed, rolled through Ulster province today. Following the killing of Owen McMahon, a saloon keeper, three of his sons and another male member of the household, news was received here of the violent death of three more Sinn Feiners at Trillick. The Sinn Feiners at Trillick were killed in a battle with Orangemen. Reserves of the Ulster special constabulary have been called out to meet the new outbreak.

Firing is in progress all along the frontier.

Search For Plane Renewed Friday

(International News Service) MIAMI, Fla., March 24.—Search for the seaplane, Miss Miami, which, with its pilot and five passengers, is about 48 hours overdue at Bimini, Bahama Islands, was continued today with renewed vigor by a fleet of speed boats and airplanes along the southern coast of Florida. No trace of the missing plane has been found, despite a widespread hunt on the ocean and in the air and persons leading the search are convinced that the plane has either gone down with all on board, or has taken shelter from a moderately rough sea on one of the Bahama Islands.

FIRST ARTICLE PUT THROUGH QUICKLY; RESERVATION LOST BY MAJORITY VOTE

Senate In Session But Few Minutes When Balloting Is Started

REAL TEST COMING ON ARTICLES TWO AND THREE

Chamber Presented Brilliant Picture As The Spirited Voting Progressed

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The United States senate at 1:50 o'clock this afternoon had adopted each of the four articles of the four-power treaty and voted down each of the reservations offered. The senate then prepared to go ahead with the adoption of the resolution of ratification.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The attention of the white civilized world was focused on the United States Senate today as it prepared to ratify the four-power Pacific treaty, by which the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan are bound together in an international agreement for their joint cooperation "in the region of the Pacific ocean."

The senate had been in session only a few minutes when the first test of strength between the treaty's supporters and opponents came after Senator Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, demanded a roll call on his reservation providing that "each of the high contracting parties shall refrain from entering into or being a party to any secret treaty agreements or understanding with any other power or powers during the life of this treaty."

The Robinson reservation was quickly defeated by a majority of 32 to 61. The first step toward ratification of the treaty came when article one of the pact was adopted by an overwhelming vote. The vote was 74 to 15.

The vote caused little surprise as opposition has centered upon articles 2 and 3. Article 2 of the treaty, the storm center of the fight against the pact, was adopted by a majority vote of 28 to 66.

The senate chamber presented a brilliant picture as the voting progressed.

The resolution was agreed to after the opponents failed to amend it or tack reservations to it, as well as to articles one and two. The vote was 26 to 67.

Article four, providing for the scrapping of the Anglo-Japanese alliance by each of the four powers was agreed to by a vote of 73 to 8.

(The senate votes on each article of the treaty separately and then on the resolution of the ratification itself. The treaty is not ratifiable until the vote is had on the resolution, even though all articles are approved.)

WE FAVOR ACCEPTANCE OF HENRY FORD'S BID
FOR MUSCLE SHOALSWE ARE IN THE MIDST OF GREAT OPPORTUNITIES.

Some twenty years ago, W. M. Drennen, then Mayor of Birmingham, made the speech at the corner stone laying of the Masonic Temple begun about that time, in which among other things he said: "Today the world has its eyes on Niagara Falls, Cairo, Egypt, and Birmingham, Alabama." With the coming of full development for Muscle Shoals right at our doors, the opening up of the mineral wealth of this county, and now the permanent bridge across the Tennessee river here insuring our location on the Bee Line highway from Chicago to the far South, we may truly say that the world has its eyes on the state of Alabama, on the Muscle Shoals, and on the Twin Cities and Morgan county.

Reports credit our fellow citizen A. G. Patterson, a member of the state highway commission with initiating the move at the recent Mobile meeting of the commission, that resulted in the agreement to authorize the wagon bridge at this point, and his timely action will meet with general and hearty endorsement. And in this connection, The Daily wishes to remind that what Mr. Patterson has begun so well, should be carried to full completion at the very earliest possible moment. Any concerted action that should be taken, can be easily had, for there is not a person in the radius of fifty miles who is not vitally interested in the erection of the proposed bridge.

In view of the developments to come with the utilization of the power at Muscle Shoals, we cannot be too hasty in getting the bridge completed, for whatever community is the best prepared to receive new developments will be the most apt to receive them, and their attendant benefits. Broadly speaking, what the connection of the two great western oceans by the Panama canal meant to the world, the connection of the sections north and south of the Tennessee river at this point with a new bridge will mean to at least two Southern states, namely Alabama and Tennessee. And because these cities and Morgan County are to benefit so directly—provided we really wish it—should cause us to leave no stone unturned in clearing the way for actual work on the bridge. The news that highway funds are available for this enterprise will prove a source of great satisfaction, so that more than ever we feel the right to congratulate this section and the whole state for voting in the constitutional amendment guaranteeing the completion of a great system of state and national highways. But for the passage of the good roads amendment, it would have remained for private enterprise and private means to have erected the Tennessee bridge, and how long it would have taken, judging by the past, it is not easy to imagine. There is a saying that it never rains but it pours, and in view of the great development enterprises now about to be put through, we are to be eye witnesses that the old saying has come true once again.

THE FISHERMAN'S SEASON.

Soon the shady banks of the creeks of the country will be lined daily with eager ones ready to hook any fish that chances to seek an early breakfast. Fishing days are great days. They relax one and furnish amusement for old and young alike. The young and the old, the halt and the lame can make it to the creek for a day's sport. It doesn't require very much effort for one to fish. Baiting the hook is the biggest job. A man may be wearied with the day's sport and promise before he gets home (to himself) never again, but when the morning comes and the bright sun is giving notice that he is to shine pretty and bright that day, the temptation is very strong to try it all over again. There is a companionship between fishermen, although you may never have seen him, if you chance to overtake a stranger on the creek it is in order to speak, ask him all the questions you can think of about the fish, the water, how deep, etc., and he will at once unobtrusively tell you and at once begin to relate about the largest hooked one of the day getting away, straightening out his hook, breaking his silk line, and otherwise tearing up in general. This is the usual fashionable formality. You will be considered very formal should you remain silent. A fisherman will divide his last pipe of tobacco, cut in twain the last chew of Brown Mule, divide his lunch with a stranger, but when it comes to the fish—they must be carried home. He would rather fall in the creek any old time than to part with the fish he either caught or bought. It's great. Try it the very first pretty day.

Alaska is rich in natural resources and very little has been done in the way of development. Gold, silver, coal and other minerals abound in practically unlimited quantities. The inaccessibility of the land has kept it from being developed up to now, but it is safe to assume that within the next few years this treasure house of nature will be sought by many who are willing to go there and work and develop. The lands are rich and alluvial. Coal is easily mined, strata of it lying above the ground inviting the modern methods of mining to come and prosper. The great No. 1 investment is still an uncharted field, and great development awaits those who are willing to make the journey and endure.

THE WAY TO DO IT.

Manchester, Ga., has pointed the way. It is for Ford and it is not only for Ford but it has sent out a missionary to exploit the advantages of the Ford proposal for Muscle Shoals.

Manchester is a little city on the A. B. and A. railroad in Georgia, less than fifty miles from Atlanta, and "sounded the clarion call and blazed the way for others to follow."

In response to a call for a Ford meeting practically every citizen of the town met and adopted strong Ford resolutions. But they did not stop there. Resolutions are well enough in their way, but they do not go far enough to suit the ideas and ideals of that community.

They determined to send a missionary out to all parts of "the south, the north, east and west, to preach the gospel of water power development, cheap fertilizer and general benefits for the masses by means of leasing Muscle Shoals property to Henry Ford."

They selected Rev. T. H. McCoy, pastor of the Central Baptist Church as the messenger to send into the field, and their selection is said to have been one who would be very glad to meet W. Logan Martin, general counsel of the Alabama Power Company, on the stump at any time and anywhere.

But it required money to send Rev. Mr. McCoy abroad and they knew it, and we are told, when this question of expense came up, a public subscription was started and practically everybody in Manchester gave to the fund, and gave quite liberally. But there were those who wanted no question to arise as to a lack of funds. They wanted ample funds. They wanted to put over their ambitious scheme right or not at all, so ten leading citizens of Manchester, we are told, went to a bank, signed a note, so the fund would be ample, and the work could commence at once.

The result is that Mr. McCoy spent several weeks at Muscle Shoals with a battery of cameras and obtained motion picture and still views of everything there, including the adjacent cities of Sheffield, Florence and Tusculum. An airplane was used in making many of the pictures. He was given the first permit issued by the government since the war for pictures of plant No. 2, constructed at a cost of $70,000,000.

We are told that to add to the setting of the lecture and get away from recitation of dry statistics, Mr. McCoy also made pictures of Helen Kellers' old home, the former inhabitations of Gen. Stonewall Jackson and General Coffee, the old farm of President Madison and other points of historic interest in the vicinity of Muscle Shoals. Indian lore of the region will be interspersed with descriptions and illustrations of the mineral deposits, forestry, agricultural possibilities, water power resources, etc.

Rev. Mr. McCoy delivered his first two lectures in Atlanta, and is now in other parts of our sister state. After touring Georgia he will go northward.—Montgomery Journal.

NEBRASKA GIVES SAMPLE OF WESTERN THOROUGHNESS.

"When you do a thing, do it thoroughly" appears to have been the motto of a bunch of high financiers who operated for a time in Fremont, Neb. They lacked just one cent of making a clean sweep in a money clean-up and they probably would have made it a one hundred percent sweep if the one cent had not been hidden from their sight.

A press dispatch from Fremont says: "A copper cent, found in the cup of an inkstand, was the total cash asset of the defunct Fidelity Trust Company of this city, Nov. 2, 1921. When he took charge T. L. Matthews, receiver, announced the lone cent piece was covered with black ink, which, he said, was responsible for the officers of the company overlooking it in the final crash."

The effete East has been considered the stamping ground of the keenest money getters, but the West is coming into its own. Pretty soon we may expect to hear of Ponzi being out-Ponzed in Nebraska, and New York and Boston wise ones, making pleasure trips through Nebraska, will be compelled to watch their steps or some designing Westerner will sell them the state capitol.—Anniston Star.

Nature studies are the most interesting because they are real. No affectation, no put on, just real. Among the flowers of the woodland meadow and well kept yards there is never a contention as to which one is the most beautifully adorned, or which one gives forth the most fragrant perfume. Each performs its duty as prescribed by nature, and there is never a discordant note. Each does its very best, and that is the sum and substance of nature life.

Can we who are endowed with intellects to think and act say as much? Many intellects lie dormant for want of activity because its keeper is afraid they cannot excel. To excel is commendable; but, to fail to function because afraid that one can not excel, is the opposite. To do the best with what one has to do with, therein lies the distinguishing mark, and few have been able to claim such distinction.

In all the transactions of life, public, private, the rule of conduct is actuated and controlled by the desire within, the ruling spirit housed in the bosom of humanity. It can be cultivated and controlled, but the actions each day, on every subject with which the individual has to do, is done from within and be it good or bad it was the edict of the mind directing the other forces of the body which accomplish the thing sought to be done.

Intelligent industry is the power which creates all we consume and wear. A man may sometimes be industrious and not produce. He may be earnest and faithful in the work he has in hand but fails to create anything. He is laboring under a great difficulty. He is not efficient. A man may likewise not be what might be called an intelligent man as the books go, but he is master of the job he has in hand; he is efficient; he knows his work and can turn out a finished product.

Along the highways and by-ways of life each year sets up a milestone. It matters not what the year writes in its history for one, each milestone is an epoch period. Into these epoch periods is written the doings of a life time. They act as friendly guide-posts, and in memory we like to revert to them occasionally and recount some of the history at least interwoven into the fabric which they contain.

FINE LETTER FROM A GOOD PHYSICIAN

The following is a clipping from a letter of a prominent physician at Eoline, Alabama:

There is no medicine manufactured today with more merits than POINDEXTER'S TONIC. A case, woman, age 39, married, rises other complications. Her right arm was stiff; said she mother of one child now about grown, had indigestion and va-hadn't used it in two months. I put her on POINDEXTER'S TONIC, two teaspoons after meals. Now she is well and eats anything she wants with pleasure. Her right arm is sound and well and she has gained twenty pounds in weight.

I had a negro child patient with Epileptic seizures. I decided the fits were caused from indigestion so put the child on POINDEXTER'S TONIC and the results are that it never had another convulsion.

Another child had vomiting purging. I pronounced it Cholera-morbus. I put him on POINDEXTER'S TONIC, once in every three hours. It recovered rapidly.

A man came to me with indigestion and said: "Doctor, if I go into the cook room where they are cooking collards, I vomit."
I put him on POINDEXTER'S TONIC and told him to go home and eat collards for supper and he did. Said he didn't quite get thru his supper as the collards were hurting him so he got up from the table, took his tonic and in a few minutes he had forgotten his collards. I can relate case after case where I have prescribed it and in every case it has proved its virtue.

The following men are merchants of Eoline, Alabama. They can write you anything that you want to know about me. Will Woodson, W. H. Montgomery and D. H. Ward.

Yours truly,

Farmers Line To Be Opened Soon

The farm telephone line from cross roads to Crowton may be opened for use Saturday. This information was brought here today by J. F. Dillehay, who was one of the prime movers in the enterprise.

The planters of that section decided to build a line of their own and connect with the Southern Bell line at the fork of the Hartsville and Somerville roads. The line is about 4 1-2 miles long and subscribers will have all conveniences of phones. Within the city subscribers are: Mr. Dillehay, J. A. Crow, Porter Cox, J. H. McClellan and G. W. Bennett. Later it is planned to extend the line as the community builds up and establish an exchange.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

What "Nerves" Brought to Madge.

NEVER have I felt so overwrought as when the lights were suddenly blotted out from the train which had undoubtedly stopped in the tunnel beneath the East River. And when a scream of terror did cut through the darkness I was for a second or two almost obsessed into believing that I really had lost control of myself.

Then as I heard a man's voice in half-tender, half-scoffing reassuring accents, I realized that the scream had come from another woman in the chair beside me. Her escort was taking care of her.

I clutched the arms of my chair and tried to stare into the darkness which was like a muffling garment settling around my head. I knew that the chairs next to me on either side were not occupied, and the knowledge made me feel doubly deserted and alone. How I longed for Dicky!

My imagination suddenly pictured Dicky sitting in the next chair, leaning toward me with reassuring words, putting his hand protectively over mine. I gulped back the sob that rose to my lips at the picture, gripped the arms of my chair the tighter, and listened tensely to the more or less audible conversation in the car.

With the exception of the woman who had screamed, my fellow-travelers appeared to be polite men and women, who, whatever their secret apprehensions, were not betraying any discomposure. There was but one uneasy question, that of a child about whose welfare when I had noticed sitting with a middle-aged woman, evidently her mother, not far from me.

"What is the matter with the train, Mother?" she asked, and though her words and manner were composed, I detected a childish tremor in her voice, and instinctively knew that she was sharing my terror. And I felt ridiculous, reassured at the mother's question, when I had noticed sitting with a middle-aged woman, evidently her mother, not far from me.

"Hold up your wrist watch, dear," her mother commanded in a low voice, "Do not be alarmed, honey, it is only me, and after a second or two, which I guessed was spent in an inspection of Cobb, secretary of state, today that he had withdrawn and he did not desire to have his name placed on the ticket. Mr. McArthur said he had reached the conclusion that it would not be well for him to take from his profession the time which will be necessary as a member of the legislature.

an illuminated surface: "Let's have a guessing game as to how long it will take to start the train, and how many separate times they do this chugging." The ruse, transparent enough to me and I guessed to the rest of the adult passengers, was eminently successful. "Oh, no! Mother! How absurd!" the little girl cried. "I'll tell you—let's do this way. I have these chocolates, and you have pennies in your purse, I know. If I guess nearest the time, you must give me a penny, and if you guess nearest, I give you a bite of chocolate."

"No, we'll pretend that we each have pennies," the mother said decidedly. "It will be a good arithmetic problem for you, for I fancy they're going to make a number of attempts to start the motor. And I do not care for chocolate today." There was a subtle undertone in her voice that made me start with a new thought. Did, perhaps, this woman fear that we might be in for an interminable ride, under the river, and that her child might become hungry, and need the chocolate before we were extricated? The thought was subtle, but it came into my imagination journeying through many wild fancies.

Do Not Be Alarmed.

I thought that we were directly underneath the East River. Suppose that while we were held there should spring a leak in the mass of masonry over our heads. Though I knew how utterly preposterous the idea was, yet my fancy clung to it fearfully, and considered it from all angles, and for an awful second or two I imagined I heard a trickling of water, then a rushing—was the sea water above us really coming into the car?

No sooner had I shaken myself free from this obsession than another came. The lights were out in the car—suppose they were out all over the train, at the beginning and the end. What was to prevent other trains from crashing into us? The reasoning that if something were the matter with the power the other trains would also be incapable of movement did not occur to me until I had felt the cold perspiration of terror starting out upon my forehead.

At the farther end of the car a faint full glow showed flickeringly. That most awful horror of all—the danger of being leaped into my brain. I felt myself give a quivering, gasping breath, then smothered it quickly with an iron determination to keep my terror to myself no matter what happened.

There was a swift, almost noiseless movement beside me, and an indistinct figure dropped into the chair beside me, brushing my garments.

"Do not be alarmed, madame," a foreign voice whispered. "It is only a train-man with a lantern."

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

How Does This Man Know Madge's Name?

I had been less bewildered by the terror at the inexplicable delay of our train beneath the tunnel, I should have resented the appearance in the next chair of the distinguished-looking foreigner who had aided me in boarding the train at Southampton. And I should have replied with stiff formality to his assurance that the lurid flickering light I had seen at the end of the car had come from an innocuous train-lantern.

But the relief from my horror of fire was so great that I am sure only that emotion showed in my voice as I breathed:

"Oh, thank you! I am so glad. It looked so much like—something—else." I knew better than to utter aloud the word—"fire"—and so to pass on to some other anxious soul the horror that had been mine.

"I can comprehend your feeling perfectly, madame." Through the stress and mental confusion of the moment there tinkled in my consciousness the note of a little warning bell. He had begun his sentence impetuously, with the peculiarly American expression of sympathy. "I know," then quickly had changed to the formal stilted expression. Why?

He gave me no time for speculation, he startled me effectively with his next words:

"There is really no cause for fright, Miss Graham." If he had intended to make me forget my peril in amazement—a thought which came to me later—he succeeded admirably. I leaned forward in my chair, trying to pierce the darkness which made his features even in the next chair only a dusky blur, and spoke sharply:

"Miss Graham? Do you then—?" "Know your name?" he interrupted. "Yes, I have known it a long time, but you do not know mine. I have had the honor in years past to be associated with your brilliant father in South America. Upon my infrequent visits to this country I have upon several occasions seen you, but I do not think your father ever had the opportunity to present me to you. Indeed, I know he did not, for I never should have forgotten it if I had received that honor."

What Madge Saw.

This accounted for it then—for his searching scrutiny, which had so embarrassed me, and for the haunting elusive consciousness of having seen him before when I had especially America. Upon numerous occasions when dining out with my father, he had pointed out to me foreign-looking men in other dining groups as having been associated with him, but it was a rare thing, indeed, for him to introduce one of them to me. But undoubtedly I had seen this man upon one of those occasions.

And yet— The little warning bell tinkled again, more faintly this time, but still with distinctness. I have what has been called an unusual memory, and I rarely forget a face. It seemed to me that if ever I had seen this man as he appeared now I could not have forgotten his very unusual aspect. I recalled the incongruity of his snow-white hair, mustache and Van Dyke beard with the ruddy, almost youthful firmness of his skin, and again my imagination was litigated with the little slip in language he had made only a few seconds previously.

Another thing I had noticed or fancied was his extravagant expression concerning his memory of an introduction to me, if he had ever had one, was in keeping with his florid, ornate personality, but there had sounded to me a mischievous little undertone, almost of mockery, in his words. Suddenly I wished I could see the eyes hidden behind his thick-lensed glasses.

A Clever Ruse?

The trainman with the lantern, the lurid glow from which had so frightened me, approached us, mounted a step near us, and began to fumble with the lights directly over our heads. The dim light from the lantern disclosed the fact that the eyeglasses of the mysterious foreigner were no longer shielding his eyes. I had no chance to see his eyes, however, for as the light approached, he turned his head as if carelessly away from me, adjusted the glasses again firmly, and turned back to me as the trainman, evidently adjusting an emergency battery, set bulbs glowing down the length of the car roof.

"Your father is with you still, Miss Graham?" he asked, and to my surprise his voice was elevated to a good bit above the pitch he had been using. "I saw the reason for his tone as I glanced around the car involuntarily, and saw every pair of eyes in it gazing covertly or openly at me. I had boarded the train at Bridgehampton, been alighted at Southampton, been assisted on board again by this man—who was patently a stranger—and now when the lights were turned on he was sitting in the chair next to me. The inference to the passengers was obvious. I hastened to return his cue.

"He has been until the last two or three weeks," I returned. "Can you give me his address?" he tossed back. "I am desolated not to have seen him for so long, and I have very little time left in this country. He took from his pocket a limp leather notebook, poised a pencil, bent toward me as if waiting for the address.

"Bravissima, Miss Graham. You have the quick cleverness," he murmured.

Why Be Christian? Preacher's Theme

Last night Evangelist C. B. Woodroof, who is conducting a revival at the Church of Christ, East Jackson, spoke to a large and attentive audience on "Why Be a Christian?" The speaker said no body could give an acceptable reason for not being a Christian. "A man is a better farmer if he is a Christian, a better merchant, a better banker, a better railroad man if he is a Christian," said Mr. Woodroof. "The only reason men and women are not Christians, is, they do not want to restrain themselves," continued the speaker. In a very earnest manner a vivid picture was drawn of what it means to be a Christian. There have been two additions during the meeting. Baptizing at 8 o'clock this afternoon. Services to-night at 7:30.

Joe Wheeler Chapter U. D. C. has felt for a number of years that a suitable monument to our Morgan County Confederate dead should be erected, but until Miss Mary Lou Dancy was elected president of the Chapter no active effort was made to give our veterans the honor that is their just due. Her chief undertaking during her first year of service was to make the State Convention a success. Meeting with enthusiastic support and complete success, she was encouraged to make the erection of a Confederate Memorial, which would be a credit to our organization, the great work of her second year's administration. Wishing to give all who would like to have fellowship in the placing of this monument the opportunity Miss Dancy gave several entertainments, and then made personal calls upon surviving members of families of Confederate heroes. Owing to financial depression contributions were few and small, but having the cause so much at heart she furnished the $1,650 necessary to finish paying for it. Later there will be notice of the unveiling with appropriate exercises.

Peeps records how he went with "Mr. Moor and Mr. Creed to Hyde park, by coach, and saw a fine foot race three times round the park, between an Irishman and "row, that was once my Lord Claydon's footman." This was followed by a horse race, and in the interval the humble spectator partook of "milk of a red cow," and the quality slipped into him with sack in it. CENTRAL BAPTIST Above has been scene of a strong contest within the adult and senior departments of the Sunday school. The results will be given next Sunday and a large attendance is urged. An ad in this issue states some of this class.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

Sunday's astrological forecast may not be read as a fortunate one, since strife, bitterness, sarcasm and unhappy conditions are predicted from many adverse rulings. It is a time for quietly governing inharmonious situations and propitiously. Those whose birthday it is should avoid contention, litigation and change. A child born on this day may have a tendency to be rash, erratic and untruthful unless strictly trained in early youth.

Monday's horoscope gives promise of fairly favorable conditions if no attempt be made to change, remove or to travel, as these are under the domination of Uranus under adverse Lunar transit. With Jupiter, Saturn and Neptune under propitious Lunar aspect, affairs should hold their own if one remains quiet and conservative.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly successful year if they remain quiet and avoid change. A child born on this day will be generous, affectionate and artistic, but possibly eccentric and wayward—unless it receives careful training early in life.

Refinishing Nickel Plating.

A new nickel-plating solution said to yield beautiful results is prepared by mixing the liquid obtained by evaporating a solution of one-half ounce nickel in aqua regia to a pasty mass and dissolving it in one pound of aqua ammonia, with that obtained by treating the same quantity of nickel with a solution of two ounces cyanide of potassium in one pound of water. More cyanide renders the deposit whiter and more ammonia renders it grayer.

HORRIBLE HEADACHES!

Try a Course of Gude's Pepto-Mangan to Overcome Their Cause

Perhaps you wonder whether a disordered stomach causes them. Maybe you think your eyes are not just right and that they make your head ache, or possibly that a sluggish liver makes your head hurt. But have you ever thought that your frequent headaches may be due to weak, watery blood? This is a very common cause of headache—what the doctors call anemic headache, due to what they term general "blood poverty." Take Gude's Pepto-Mangan with your meals for a few weeks to build up your blood and general strength, and your headaches will probably cease. Gude's Pepto-Mangan contains a readily digestible form of iron that puts more redness into your blood, and, as everybody knows, it is red blood that is the only sure foundation of good health. You cannot be well without it. Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan of your druggist. It is sold in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

BILIOUS CHILDREN

Black-Draught, Long in Successful Use, Praised by an Arkansas Mother, "Soon Does Its Work."

Marmaduke, Ark.—Speaking of Theodor's Black-Draught, which from long use in her household has become regarded as "the family medicine," Mrs. Mary E. Hill, of Route 1, this place, says:

"When the children get bilious, I give them a couple of good doses, and when we have sour stomach, headache, or any liver or stomach trouble, we use Black-Draught. It is an easy laxative, and soon does the work. I certainly think it is one of the best remedies made."

Black-Draught acts on the liver, gently, but positively, and helps it in its important function of throwing out its waste materials and poisons from the system.

In thousands of households Black-Draught is kept handy for immediate use in time of need. Prompt treatment often is half the battle, and will often prevent slight ills from developing into serious troubles.

Its well-established merit, during more than 70 years of successful use, should convince you of the helpful effects obtainable by taking Black-Draught for liver and stomach disorders. Get a package today, and keep it in your house. See that the package bears the words, "Theodor's Black-Draught" NO-141

"...and we are a healthy, happy family now"

—Louis Gingras

TINGLING with abundant energy, appetites hearty, nerves strong and steady and their faces radiant with the glow of perfect health, the entire family of Louis Gingras, 9 Harrison Ave., Providence, R. I., are an eloquent tribute to the powers of Tanlac, the greatest family medicine the world has ever known.

"I've put Tanlac to the test four times right in my own family and it hasn't failed me once," declared Mr. Gingras. "My wife, my son and my daughter, as well as myself, have all been built up from a half-sick, run-down, worn-out set of people into a healthy, happy family brimful of new life and energy."

And the experience of this family is only typical of thousands of others whose statements are on file in the Tanlac office. Hardly a day passes that does not bring scores of such messages of praise from every part of the United States and Canada from families where mother, father, son and daughter have all found health, contentment and the joys of living through simply taking a course of Tanlac.

Take, for instance, the case of John Widner, 1371 Roosevelt Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., who says: "My wife, myself and little boy are now as healthy, happy family as you will ever see—and it's all due to Tanlac."

Or that of Mrs. John Marquis and her family of 16 living in Manchester, N. H., at 292 Belmont St. She says: "Tanalac has been the only medicine used in our house for two years and it has kept every one of the 16 here in the best of health."

In Chicago, Frank R. Richards, of 441 South Wood St., writes: "We will never be without Tanlac in our house after the remarkable way it has built up my wife, my son and myself to where we are the very picture of health."

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, March 23—Westerners who relate in vaunting terms the wonders of living on a mountain which gives them an earlier and later glow of the sun because of their elevation above the horizon and the surrounding country have nothing whatever on the pitied denizens of Manhattan skyscrapers. "My office on the 34th floor gains a whole hour's daylight," said one man the other day. "It makes that much actual difference in my working schedule, too." New York not only has the highest buildings in the world, but they stand for the most part near the center of Manhattan island, decidedly higher than the divers and exposed to the sun when it rises and sets. After the sun sets the street it takes almost half an hour for it to disappear from the view of the man at the top of the building.

Women who vote and sit on political party committees and share all the rest of the burdens and rights of citizenship are not going to let a figure of a man disdaining the efforts of women to pull him from his high moral perch, be the symbol of civic virtue in our city—not without protest, at least. The much-talked-of sculptured group which was to face the city hall has aroused a clamor or the part of these same women and poor Mayor Hylan is beginning to grasp something of the meaning of the "woman scorned." He has consequently written a letter to the board of estimate, suggesting that in view of the fact that objection has been made that the statue degrade womanhood, it might be well to have a public tearing of it before it is set in place.

We are at last having exhibition in our shop windows of the really long new skirts. Those of us who sputtered a few months ago when the skirt went forth for eight and nine inches from the floor instead of 12 and 14, have no alternative left now except to gasp instead of sputter. Why eight inches will look like a bathing suit compared to these drooping hems—if we finally accept them.

Albert Bruning in Shaw's "Back to Methuselah," now being produced in three sections by the Theatre Guild, undoubtedly holds the endurance championship. So far as any records show, he has the most lines to memorize and give of any actor in any part in the history of the drama. Hamlet has always been the record role so far as that is concerned, and in one of the three sections alone, Mr. Bruning matches Hamlet. Hamlet has 10,000 words, but they are almost always cut and are scattered through the five acts. Mr. Bruning has 6,000 in one act.

The announcement that two young women of this city, Misses Cordelia Lee and Grace Hoffheimer, have been awarded scholarships at the Fontainebleau School of Music calls attention to the new use to which this beautiful and historic palace just outside of Paris is now dedicated. The French government in expressing its appreciation of the assistance given by America to needy French musicians during the war, has turned over this wonderful building for a summer school of music for Americans. The appointments are made or approved by the governor of each of our states. The American committee through its chairman, Mrs. George Montgomery Tuttle, of East 75th street, announces that 100 scholarships have been awarded for the coming season.

In this season of unusual plays, there will be still one more far removed from the ordinary dramatic expectations. It is "Taboo," which will open next month for a series of special matinees. The play tells a story of voodooism, and is said to handle the question neither from the standpoint of ridicule or of propaganda, but simply to discuss it and show it. Margaret Wycherly will head the cast.

Authorities in nearby towns were immediately notified of the robbery and all trains are being searched.

Getting Rid of a Stubborn Cough Is Child's Play Now

Make the Medicine Yourself at Home
It's Cheap—but You Can't Beat It

If you want to take care of that sad, long-on cough and do it in a few hours, better get one ounce of armit (double strength) and mix a half pint at home.

You can do this in two minutes by adding a little sugar and enough water to fill a half pint bottle. You'll travel the world over before you get a medicine that will act so surely and quickly on the mucus membrane of the nose and throat. It halts the inflammation, the tickling sensation stops with the first spoonful, the heavy breathing goes and clean membrane, free from irritation and mucus follows.

For catarrhal conditions such as mucus droppings, clogged nostrils and watery eyes, it won't disappoint—ask for Parmit (double strength). Speak plainly so that the druggist will know exactly what you want. Adverse Swift's Premium Ham and Swift's Premium Bacon are produced from only the best hogs. Many of the animals we buy do not furnish meat of Premium quality.

Since these are the choice cuts from the best hogs, cured and smoked in the best way, with scientific care and precision, they are naturally in great demand; but these cuts, with the loin from which pork chops come, represent only about 34 per cent of the live animal.

The remaining 66 per cent consists of the cheaper cuts, such as spare ribs, shoulders, trimmings, pigs' feet, lard, etc., and shrinkage in dressing and curing. Shrinkage is equal to one pound in each five, and has no value whatever.

That is why the prices of "Premium" Ham and Bacon and pork loins are higher than the price of the live animal.

Everybody wants them—and yet they are only about one-third of the entire weight. "Premium" Bacon alone is only about 8 per cent.

The great demand for the choicer cuts, and the smaller demand for the cheaper cuts, constitute the reason for the comparatively higher price of the one-third, and the lower price of the other two-thirds. (Some of the lower priced cuts sell at less than the per-pound price of the live animal.)

It is only by utilizing all possible by-products and exercising the utmost skill and efficiency that we are able to average a profit of a fraction of a cent a pound on all our business.

N. B. Some very delicious dishes can be prepared from the cheaper cuts.

Monument Has Been Erected

The work of erecting the Confederate monument on the court house lawn was completed today. The inscriptions on the monument are concealed for the time being, the monument to be covered with cloth until such a time as the unveiling will take place. The date set for the unveiling has not as yet been determined, but an appropriate service will be planned by those in charge of the ceremonies, and a speaker of national fame will make the address of the occasion.

The monument is being erected by the Morgan county chapter of the U. D. C., and this organization will have charge of the ceremonies attending the unveiling ceremonies.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

a woman in Lynn, Mass., was steeping herbs on her kitchen stove according to a recipe of her own, to furnish medicine for the women of the neighborhood. Today, a stone's throw from the little house where she lived, there is a four-story laboratory, making the same medicine for the women of the world. During the last year almost 500 tons of carefully selected herbs were used in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THIS AND THAT, HERE AND THERE

By J. ADLAI WEST

Imposing Monument to The Confederate Dead.

There has always been those who were willing to "carry on." Due to these ministrations there is always something being accomplished of a concrete nature, enduring, abiding. The splendid thought originating in the minds of the good women comprising the membership of the county U. D. C. has accomplished something that will stand for all time as a memorial to their efforts. The efforts of the U. D. C. are directed toward fostering and taking care of the history of the Confederate soldier. As these children of the confederacy keep alive the memory and heroic achievements of their forefathers, so will their children's children do the same things. It lasts.

The Confederate soldier will always stand as one of the heroic figures in the battles of the world. Half clad, half fed, poorly equipped to fight the battles of war, reduced to poverty almost by four years of bloody strife, making it almost impossible to recoup the lost fortunes made possible by war, he demonstrated that by determination and the realization that his home and loved ones were left to him, spurred anew to activity, and in peace as in war he gave to his country one of the most forcible examples of all history.

These expressions of remembrance are most beautiful. Just as the Confederate cemeteries are now carefully looked after and made beauty spots wherever they exist, these monuments thus erected here and there over the Southland tell the story to others as the years come and go, and serve as beacon lights to the youth of the Southland, inspiring to higher heights and nobler attainments as they contemplate the heroic deeds, in peace as well as in war, of their forefathers.

When we look upon a monument designed to perpetuate history of this kind, the thought turns at once to Robert E. Lee, that Christian soldier, devoted patriot, upright citizen and immortal hero. We think of Stonewall Jackson on bended knee praying for the success of his soldiers. We ever the name of Sam Davis, although a youth, preferred death rather than besmirch his honor. We think of the thousands of other Confederate soldiers who were incarcerated in war prisons for many weary months, many of them dying with disease away from home and loved ones. These are some of the things which make the cause of the Confederate soldier dear to the descendants thereof, and time cannot obliterate the regard in which they are held.

On Fame's eternal camping ground, Their silent tents are spread; And glory guards with solemn round The bivouac of the dead.

A Most Important Utility
Now Seems Almost Assured.
The reviving of the issue of bridging the Tennessee river at this point is one of the really big improvement measures which the state highway commission is projecting. It means much for this section. It will awaken the slumbering chords of lethargy and at once a spirit of optimism will be extant. It will mean that many more thousand tourists will pass through this fertile valley than heretofore, and at once will start a period of development that will fit into an important niche with the development of Muscle Shoals.

With a bridge across the Tennessee river at this point the highway would be open to travel the year round. Now when the river is up many days at a time ensue in which travel is impossible, as it is impossible to operate the ferries here.

It seems that all the good things are coming to the Tennessee Valley at once. We mean, of course, the Ford development. Psychology is a great force. Try it out on the visiting Washingtonians. Let 10,000 citizens of the Tennessee Valley think so strongly that the Ford bid should be accepted, that the current may strike a like thought in the minds of our guests. Psychology and telepathy—try them both. Simple means some times are most availing. The small hand of a little Dutch boy saved the Netherlands from flooding by impressing his hand against a small opening made by a crawfish in the dike, holding it there until assistance came.

Morgan county is emerging from thralldom of bad highways and ere the year closes there will have been commenced within the bounds of the county many miles of modern highways over which her citizens can pass with all ease any season of the year. It has been a slow transition. A matter of education largely of the masses to the benefits to be derived from well constructed roads. The object lessons gained from road building begun in 1908 has gradually taken deeper and firmer hold on her citizenship, and they are now practically a unit for the development of a system of highways in the county which will do much to make a better and contented citizenship, for there are so many other helpful things which come with them.

The community life of the rural districts are greatly helped by a system of roads, such as are approved by the state highway department, and road schools come in for their share of the benefits thus derived. A bigger net profit from the products of the farm will likewise accrue from the fact that it will cost less to transport the farm commodities to market once the roads are completed. We are on the eve of great things from a county standpoint, and it behooves every citizen of the county to lend a helping hand in every way possible to make the road building project a success. We must enter an era of broad civic spirit, country-wide, which will sweep all opposition aside in instituting helpful measures which will edify to the benefit of the humblest citizen within the bounds of our county, and ultimately the entire state. Now is the time to forge ahead.

rially and agriculturally, and we owe it to our state to provide her with facilities. A subscription to Auburn is an investment and not a gift.

"The people of the entire state are just now learning the facts about their school at Auburn and we are convinced that not only will we get the $1,000,000 asked but there will be enough support in the future to enable the institution to meet the demands of Alabama for trained workers. Alabama looks to Auburn to 'produce the producers'."

In addition to Morgan county men present, there were representatives from Limestone, Cullman and Jackson counties. Those present were: A. J. Harris of Decatur, district chairman; W. J. Garnett, Decatur; Dr. Spright Dowell of Auburn; Leon C. Bradley, of Birmingham; Prof. M. K. Clements, of Athens; Fred Armstrong, of Cullman; T. B. Chambers, of Athens; E. A. Caldwell, of Scottsboro; M. H. Killingsworth, of Cullman; J. H. LeSeur, of Bridgeport.
